DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's amendments to the drawing are acknowledged. Consequently, objection to the drawing is withdrawn.
2. Applicant's amendments to claims 1 – 19 are acknowledged. Consequently, rejections to the claims 1 – 19 under 35 U.S.C. 112, first and second paragraph are withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1, 6 – 10, 15 - 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Iyengar et al (U.S. 6,018,627).

♦ As per claim 1, 10, 19,

Iyengar discloses a method of updating business control data comprising:

- “Developing a model of business rules spanning a plurality of applications and building said rules into a common database” See Fig. 1 and 7, col. 3, lines 64 – 65, col. 4, lines 27 – 33. As noted above, a “common database” corresponds to the “repository 20” that stored business information or enterprise modeling. “Business rules” corresponds to the “business modeling” (col. 8, lines 45 – 49). Business rules are derived from the legacy item which including pre-existed applications (col. 3, lines 58 – 63). This includes the meaning of “spanning plurality of application”. And the repository stores all business rules and relationship between them (col. 4, lines 28 – 33). This data corresponds to the common data between applications.

- “Entering business control data into said common database” See Fig. 7 – 9, col. 9, lines 23 – 48. “Business control data” corresponds to the “business logic data”.
- “Disseminating to a plurality of applications, respective portions of said business control data according to said business rules” col. 3, lines 1 – 2, col. 12, lines 35 – 51.

♦ As per claim 6 - 7, 15 – 16,

- “Wherein said business control data is entered into said common database using a common data administration application” See Fig. 2B - 3, col. 7, lines 29 – 43. “A common data administration application” corresponds to the application window 35.
- “Wherein said common data administration application is adapted to receive input from logged on individuals and from an automated feed from a source system” See Fig. 1. The “legacy integration” corresponds to the source system.

♦ As per claim 8 - 9, 17 – 18,

- “Entering additional rules into said common data administration application” and “Wherein said business control data is entered into said common database according to said additional rules” See Fig. 4 – 9.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 2 – 5, 11 – 14, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Iyengar et al (U.S. 6,018,627) in view of Souder et al (U.S. 5,724,556).

♦ As per claim 2 - 5, 11 – 14,

Iyengar discloses a system for developing business application using the Unified Modeling Language (UML). However, Iyengar does not clearly disclose: Rules are built to define a dissemination structure, wherein said structure has a plurality of instances of said common database; wherein said plurality of instances run on a corresponding plurality of servers located in corresponding geographical locations; wherein said geographical locations are in disparate continents.

Referring to col. 1, lines 21 – 45. Iyengar teaches that each rule or business model can be applied to a particular environment. Iyengar also teaches that the deployment of component over the Internet (col. 11, lines 16 – 46). Clearly, Iyengar implicitly teaches about the uses of plurality of servers located in disparate continents by using the Internet. Therefore, when building the business rules, the rules must define the dissemination structure.

On the other hand, Souder et al (U.S. 5,724,556) discloses a distributed system that includes a distributed modeler for defining business models wherein the business model comprising business locations and the business functions that occur at each business location (See col. 11, lines 40 – 60, Souder). Souder discloses in Fig. 23 that each location only contains specified modules. The table in Fig. 23 corresponds the structure in the instance application. The plurality of instance corresponds to the plurality of location in the table. Each instance can be located in different sites (col. 1, lines 29 – 42, Souder).

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply the teaching of Souder into the invention of Iyengar because the combination would provide more control in accessing data in different nodes or locations (col. 4, lines 13 – 32, Souder).

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments filed 09/13/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that the Iyengar reference fails to disclose common business control data across multiple applications and integrates that data into the multiple applications. The Examiner respectfully disagrees.

Referring to Fig. 1 and 7, col. 3, lines 64 – 65, col. 4, lines 27 – 33, a “common database” corresponds to the “repository 20” that stored business information or enterprise modeling.

“Business rules” corresponds to the “business modeling” (col. 8, lines 45 – 49). Business rules are derived from the legacy items which including pre-existed applications (col. 3, lines 58 – 63).

This includes the meaning of “spanning plurality of application”. And the repository stores all business rules and relationship between them (col. 4, lines 28 – 33). This relationship data corresponds to the common data between applications. Therefore, Iyengar reference does disclose common business control data across multiple applications and integrates that data into the multiple applications.

Conclusion

8. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
